The Analysis Of Officers Killed Series

Robbery in Progress

Examines the dangers of responding to armed robbery calls and what officers should do to help save their own lives.

This program is the result of a ten year U.S. study on how and why officers were killed while dealing with an armed robbery in progress or an armed robbery suspect.

Actual cases are dramatized to show how officers were killed and to illustrate what dangers officers should be prepared for when handling armed robbery calls.

Man with Gun Calls

Reenactments of the true risks and new (U.S.) vital statistics give officers the information they need to survive while on man-with-gun calls. As this program dramatically illustrates, there are many ways to die on a man-with-gun call. Studying these ways may keep officers alive.

14 minutes, order 1-8179

Traffic Stops

Re-enactments of actual incidents help officers identify mistakes and stay alive.

From such first-time disclosure of facts officers will not only identify what they do right but also see mistakes they make that could be deadly.

Burglaries in Progress

This program is the outcome of nationwide FBI studies of officers killed over a ten year period. It identifies...and through dramatic reenactment analysis ...actual areas of dangers encountered in the past.

While some of the findings will match expectations, many others may suggest re-evaluation of certain beliefs and tactics.

Like previous programs in this series, this film will provide valuable tools in survival training...for rookies and for veteran officers.

Off-Duty

Many officers are killed by taking risks ... necessary or unnecessary ... while off duty. Of the cases studied, most officers died intervening in business robberies; many died attempting to catch criminals without benefit of back up or weapons; some died in acts of revenge.

The program discourages off duty investigations and acts of heroism, and suggests that the best role to take is that of a good witness.

17 minutes, order 1-8418

Handling Prisoners

First time disclosure of facts, plus reenactments of actual incidents, officers can not only spot what they do right, but identify...and avoid...mistakes that could be deadly.

Domestic Disputes

Responding to calls of domestic violence is often the cause of assault and death among law enforcement officer. This program is the result of a ten year study on officers who were killed while dealing with a domestic dispute situation. Actual cases are dramatized, showing how the officers were killed and the kinds of dangers future officers should be prepared for when handling domestic disputes.

Emphasis is made on the first minute of response being the most crucial to an officer's safety.

Domestic Violence: A Multidisciplinary Training Series

During the last decade the problem of domestic violence has received a dramatic increase in public and media attention and presents the criminal justice system with a major challenge. Family violence is not solely a law enforcement problem; responding effectively to family violence requires a coordinated and integrated response from many different groups and social agencies.

With components for law enforcement, district attorneys, medical providers, public and community-based organizations and other service providers, this state-of-the-art, multidisciplinary training curricula will enhance the skills and knowledge of all participants. Designed to provide training at various levels, this video combines a 10-part video program with a facilitator's guide and software tailored to four different tiers of instruction : Law Enforcement Academy/Recruit Training; First Responder/Patrol Training; Community Collaboration; and Family Violence Specialist Training.

The video covers various topics related to domestic violence, including why victims of abuse stay with their abuser, interviewing victims, children and batterers, cultural differences and what to do when the abuser is a police officer.

This intensive training program was developed by representatives from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office, Los Angeles County Domestic Violence Council, Department of Children and Family Services and the LAC/USC Violence Intervention Program.

Driven To Distraction

When operating their patrol cars during even the most routine situations, patrol officers often must perform multiple tasks apart from driving their vehicles safely. The leading cause of traffic accidents involving on-duty law enforcement officers is distractions, such as operating the radio, lights, or siren of the vehicle, looking for directions on a map, or looking in a direction other than that in which the car is moving. This program discusses ways in which officers can manage such distractions while driving safely.

Homicide Crime Scene Preservation And Handling

Recent high profile cases in the media have focused attention on the importance of conducting a proper crime scene investigation. Law enforcement agencies have been both praised and criticized on their handling of these sensitive cases.

This up-to-date video instructs patrol officers on their proper role in the investigation of a homicide crime scene.

Points out common errors made and shows the correct procedures to follow when a patrol officer comes upon the scene of a homicide. How to secure the crime scene, how to avoid contamination of evidence, how to protect and obtain various types of physical evidence at a crime scene and from the body of a suspect and the use of protective clothing at a crime scene are among the topics covered.

Although directed primarily at patrol officers and their role in a crime scene investigation, it will serve as a good refresher for investigators and supervisory personnel in reinforcing the proper techniques in crime scene investigations.

Produced by the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department.

KEY POINTS: - Teaches new officers the basic steps and precautions in handling the crime scene of a homicide investigation. - Assists new officers in avoiding the mistakes commonly made in crime scene investigations. - Reinforces for experienced officers the proper techniques in handling the crime scene of a homicide investigation. - Assists academy and field trainers in the instruction of new and experienced officers in the handling of crime scene investigations.

Road Rage And Aggressive Driving

Learning Resources

A View From The Driver's Seat

„Road rage“ is deliberate, violent behaviour by a driver in response to a real or imagined traffic grievance. Drivers may use their vehicles as weapons, or even get out of their cars to accost or attack another driver. Road rage occurs when something “snaps” in a driver who might usually drive carefully and obey all traffic laws. Incidents caused by road rage can and do result in physical assault, damage to or destruction of personal and public property. Similar to the road rage driver is the “aggressive” driver. An aggressive driver may run red lights, tailgate, weave in and out of traffic and ignore traffic laws as their normal pattern of driving. An aggressive driver may trigger road rage in another driver or may develop road rage themselves.

This timely program looks at road rage and aggressive driving from the driver's perspective. Viewers learn what to do if they are the object of an enraged driver and how to avoid becoming enraged themselves. Unintentional actions such as driving too slowly, blocking the passing lane, cutting off another driver, or tailgating, can all lead to road rage. Knowing what to do if confronted by a person who is enraged can mean the difference between life and death.

Scared Straight! 20 Years Later

In 1978, seventeen teenage lawbreakers were taken inside of Rahway—a maximum security prison in New Jersey. The reason, however, was not to serve time in jail for their crimes. Rather, they were being sent to Rahway in an attempt to convince them to abandon crime and build a better future for themselves.

How was this to be accomplished? In a raw confrontation, a group of hardened convicts called “The Lifers” tried to literally scare the kids into going straight. Using explicit language and “in your face” tactics, The Lifers spared their audience nothing while revealing what life behind bars is really like. The groundbreaking film Scared Straight! documented this experience, winning an Academy Award and eight Emmys after it first aired twenty years ago.

What has happened to these kids over the past twenty years? Are any of them in prison? Are any of the convicts out? Today, 20 Years Later revisits some of the teenagers—now in their thirties—and the convicts who tried to change their lives.

Combining current interviews with clips from the original program and interviews conducted ten years later, this video shows viewers how the experience impacted the futures of the teens and convicts alike. One major revelation serves as a lesson to everyone: in cases where after twenty years nothing much had changed for a participant, drug and alcohol abuse could almost always be identified as the underlying cause.

Most of the teens and many of the convicts benefitted from the experience, adding to the many reasons to continue the program for new generations. For viewers, especially teens who are currently committing crimes or those who are “on the edge”, this program will serve to jolt them into understanding what life in prison really means.

The Will To Survive: Officer Survival V I I

„Don't quit! Fight back! Never give up!” This dramatic re-enactment of an officer shooting recreates a true incident. The shooting of deputies George Arthur and Mike Waters is vividly depicted in this program that stresses the need for officers to always fight back and never give up, even when facing their own mortality.

As the events unfold, viewers witness the inner strength and resolve of the two officers, and their overwhelming will to live. After initially sustaining their injuries, they both thought of death and accepted it. They then turned away from those thoughts and continued to do the things that would ensure their survival. Anger and adrenaline helped them to fight back and eventually recover.

At the end of the program, George Arthur and Mike Waters comment on their thoughts of the incident, and reveal how they survived and what they learned from the experience.
